Cincinnati, Ohio

March 15-18, 2023

WELCOME TO CINCINNATI

And the 57th Annual NCECA conference, CURRENT! We're so excited to show you our city, deep in the heartland of America where chili goes on spaghetti and pigs fly! Our food scene is nationally recognized, our urban core is dynamic, an electric current flows through the mighty Ohio river, and our art scene is world-renowned.

Cincinnati has a rich history of ceramics, from the indigenous mound builders of the Eastern and Early Woodland Indian tribes (like the Shawnee, Osage, Myamina, Kaskaskia, Hopewell, and Adena) to ceramic artists like Maria Longworth Storer, who established Rookwood Pottery when she found that clays of the Ohio Valley rivaled those used in the world's finest ceramics.

Thanks to the following Cincinnati community partners whose in-kind support makes many of the experiences detailed in this map possible.

Our city is home to contemporary ceramicists making incredible groundbreaking works at local studios and academic institutions and this community has been working hard to bring you an unforgettable experience.

We have over 90 exhibitions on view, bookended with incredible performances, speakers, music, and hands-on experiences that showcase the best of our region's diverse maker communities. Grab a map, fill your coffee mugs and cups and let's start celebrating!
